The abattoir is losing N$12–15 million a month with processing fully suspended following the foot-and-mouth outbreak in the far south, which struck roughly six months after it won EU export certification on 7 April 2026. The N$280 million plant was designed for 250 cattle a day (about 50,000 a year) and had shipped around 100 containers to niche UK, EU and Norwegian markets. Of about 240 employees, staff were on paid leave in September and October, with November pay cut to two-thirds for those working under half their normal hours. Coronation sees 'outstanding' opportunities despite a slower year. While the short-term investment performance has been challenging, Coronation Fund Managers maintains the environment provides a very attractive backdrop for active stock pickers who are prepared to take a long-term view. The group, which ended the year with assets under management (AUM) of R750bn, reported a 9% decline in fund management earnings per share (FMEPS) on Tuesday to 413.7c for the year to end-September. Revenue at R4.29bn was flat year on year amid challenging conditions, while operating costs increased but remained below inflation. SA Economic News

Joburg in the balance as ANC and ActionSA divvy up power in Gauteng. ActionSA and the ANC are nearing a power-sharing deal in Gauteng that would see the two parties divide the province's three metros between them but remain deadlocked over control of Johannesburg. They were due to meet throughout Wednesday to attempt to finalise an agreement, according to ActionSA leader Herman Mashaba. He told News24 they had agreed that ActionSA would get the mayoralty of Tshwane, which would mean Nasiphi Moya returns to the post, while the ANC would get the mayor's seat in Ekurhuleni. Mashaba said he had no objection to the Ekurhuleni metro going to the ANC, as per an offer sent to his party on Monday. He was also amenable to giving the ANC the positions of deputy mayor and speaker in Tshwane. ActionSA replied with a counteroffer, which he believed would fly fairly easily. Mashaba said his counterproposal did not address particular positions but rather the finer points of a pact as it would pertain to service delivery.

SADC News

Angola defies global trend, cuts rates again to 10-year low. Angola's central bank remained a global outlier, cutting its key interest rate again to the lowest in more than a decade as it sees inflation continuing to slow. The monetary policy committee reduced the benchmark rate for a fourth straight time to 14% from 14.75%, Governor Manuel Tiago Dias said Tuesday in Saurimo, northeastern Angola. That brings cumulative rate cuts to 550 basis points since its easing cycle started in September 2025. "The decision was based on slowing inflation and a favorable macroeconomic outlook for the short and medium term," Dias said. With many central banks around the world either increasing rates or holding, the southwest African nation is among a small group of economies to have continued cutting borrowing costs since US-Iran hostilities erupted in late February, elevating oil and fertilizer prices. Angolan inflation has eased to 8.16% in October from 15.7% at the end of last year.
